By Jerry Saltz

the
YEAR IN CULTURE
2014

This week, Vulture will be publishing our critics' year-end lists.

11. Susan Te Kahurangi King, Chris Byrne and Marquand Books at the Outsider Art Fair/Andrew Edlin Gallery

Susan Te Kahurangi King, born in the early 1950s, does not speak, but she draws like a Disney-inspired angel. The first time her work was ever seen outside her native New Zealand gave us fabulous graphite and colored-pencil, crayon, and ink conglomerations of Donald Duck, Willem de Kooning, Jim Nutt, Roy Lichtenstein, and Carroll Dunham. More, please.
